HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Mrs. Bullock Gave Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

On, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and it will surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

Mrs. Watt Entertained at a Musicales Honoring Mrs. McKay

One of the most beautiful social functions that this year, or any other, has witnessed was the morning musicale given from 10 to 12 o'clock today by Mrs. Harry Farlin Watt at her attractive bungalow in Linwood suburb, in honor of her house guest, Mrs. William George McKay, of Jacksonville.

For her floral decorative motif Mrs. Watt selected a flower now at its height, the pretty morning glory, which with greens was used exclusively except for jardinières of zenias, places on the veranda. The spacious living room and dining room, separated only by a grille work, were thrown together for the musicale and these attractive apartments together with an adjoining room, were wreathed throughout with garlands of blue morning glories. The arrangement of the flowers and greens was exceedingly artistic and gave a bower like effect to the rooms. Vieing with the interior decorations was the broad piazza, which with its dark green screens, was converted into an outdoor living room and made alluring by dozens of zenias in jardinières, rugs, seats and swing.

Amidst the charming floral framing were seated the guests assembled for the musicale, a pretty picture in a pretty setting.

Mrs. W. K. Lane and Mrs. Harry Walters met the guests as they arrived and invited them to the punch table, where a refreshing fruit punch was served by Misses Onie Chazel and Elair Woodrow. Around the base of the tall bowl morning glories were twined and on the edge of the bowl were perched little blue birds.

Mrs. Watt received her guests wearing a blue taffeta dress with corsage bouquet of Killarney roses and was most gracious in extending the cordial hospitality of her home. Mrs. McKay, the charming honoree, wore a most becoming gown of old rose chiffon, with corsage of roses, the same as the hostess. It was with much pleasure, the guests met Mrs. McKay.

Miss Virginia Sistrunk distributed the programs and ushered the ladies to their seats. The artist of the morning was Miss Cecile Downs, Ocala's gifted vocalist who is studying for grand opera and is now home on a summer vacation. Her accompaniments were played by Miss Mamie Gross, a pianist, whose appearance on any program is an assurance of success and who can fill the difficult roll of accompanist with ease and skill.

Following was the program:

- (a) On a Wild Rose Tree.....Rotoli
- (b) Gray Days.....Johnson
- (c) Spirit Flower.....C. Tipton
- (d) A Birthday.....Woodman
- (a) My Soul.....Bond
- (b) Somewhere a Voice is Calling.....Tate
- (c) I Hear a Thrush at Eve.....Cadman
- (d) To a Messenger.....La Forge
- (a) Where My Caravan Has Rested.....Lohr
- (b) Mammy's Song.....Ware
- (c) Will o' the Wisp.....Spross
- (d) Hayfields and Butterflies.....Del Riego

Following the fine program came delicious refreshments; chicken salad, tomato aspic, wafers, pickles, grape juice capped with candied violets and macaroons. Misses Mary and Anna McDowell, and Misses Woodrow and Chazel assisted in serving.

Bidden to this beautiful party were only the ladies who have entertained Mrs. Watt since she came to the city to reside. The invitation list was as follows: Mrs. H. C. Dozier, Mrs. William Hocker, Mrs. L. F. Blalock, Mrs. G. W. Richardson, Mrs. D. W. Tompkins, Mrs. W. A. Knight, Mrs. E. L. Carney, Mrs. M. J. Roess, Mrs. H. A. Ford, Mrs. G. H. Ford, Mrs. R. T. ## —THE— DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

In the empty freight car as it bowed along the combat was over. Spent, worn and battered, Arthur lay bound on the floor of the freight car, his hands pinioned behind him by the dirty leathern belt of Mr. Strap McGee, gentleman of leisure.

"He ain't no bull in plain clothes, if dem is plain clothes," panted Mr. McGee as he nursed a swelling eye; "he ain't no railroad dick either. He's a welterweight champion," he added ruefully.

This also was the opinion of Scotty, the rat faced little tramp whose suspicions had caused the combat, and likewise was it the opinion of Chicago Pete, the bulbous nosed third member of the trio of travelers, for all these gentlemen bore many signs of the conflict through which they had passed. They had conquered Arthur, but at a frightful cost to the allies.

"He busted me smoot," moaned Chicago Pete, "an' jest for dat I'll hand him a shoe full of feet," and, standing over Arthur, helpless and pinioned, the gentleman from Chicago gave him a brutal kick in the ribs.

"An' jest for dat we'll frisk young John L. an' swipe his glad rags, too," asserted Mr. Strap McGee.

They took some $20 they found upon Arthur, for in addition to having lent Blair money to lose in Mr. Abe Bloom's gambling establishment Arthur had generously given him almost all of the rest of the proceeds from the pawning of the diamond from the sky.

Then the tramps stripped Arthur and proceeded gravely to shoot caps for his clothes. They were won by the more fortunate Mr. Strap McGee, more fortunate in the fact that the dice were his, and he knew how to manipulate them. Bruised and battered as he was, Arthur could not restrain a laugh at the ludicrous aspect the tramp leader presented in the dirty and disheveled evening clothes, with Arthur's broken silk hat perched jauntily on his head.

The freight stopped at a water tank, and the three tramps withdrew, with many caustic remarks at parting. Arthur freed himself from his bonds and with some repugnance donned the frowsy garments of the tramp. Then he, too, sprang from the freight car and made through a cornfield across the country. He reflected, with a smile, that the actions of the tramp would be his salvation. He was right in this, for shortly afterward Mr. Strap McGee, despite his indignant protests and explanations, was seized by railroad detectives and held on a telegraphic description of his attire as Arthur Stanley, wanted for murder.

At sunset a good looking young tramp stopped in the door yard of Alex Smith's farm and asked for work. The farmer put him to chopping wood for his supper, and so well did he acquit himself and so soon did he gain the good graces of the farmer's wife and the farmer's little baby girl that despite the rags of his attire John Powell—for such was the name Arthur gave—was greeted on the barn floor in the morning, after a restful night in the haymow, with a proffer of steady employment.

That same night by the wayside, Quabba and his external revenue collector, the monkey Clarence, camped beneath a tree. Again Quabba showed his companion the diamond from the sky, and again he said to the monkey, "We are rich men now, Clarence!" Then he placed it in his breast, and the monkey snuggled close to him and they fell asleep and had such dreams as man and monkey may.

But in the dawn Clarence awoke and gained the diamond without awakening his master and climbed the tree at the long end of his tether to examine his find undisturbed. But an owl in the hollow above the lower branches annoyed Clarence, and when he felt the jerk of his string he stole his eye from the owl's nest and left the diamond from the sky in its place. In Clarence's monkey mind it was a case of fair exchange and therefore not a robbery.

His late master on the ground, now wide awake, yanked at Clarence viciously, and the indignant monkey dropped the owl egg down into his master's upturned face. Nor would he help the frantic Quabba search high and low upon the ground for the missing jewel of price, so soon found, so soon lost again!
